OUT ON THE LIMB with George Vierhus

IN LAST WEEK'S issue appeared a photo of the charred remains of a two-story house at 237 N. Central which burned to the ground about 1:30 a.m. on June 22.

The house was vacant at the time. It's occupant for many, many years, Mrs. Minnie Neff, had died about two weeks previously. She had lived by herself in the house and was found dead; apparently she had died several days before.

The house had been built before the turn of the century and with its burning plus the death of Mrs. Neff, two more links of early-day Campbell have gone.

We are sorry we had not known Mrs. Neff. We are sure we could have picked up bits of Campbell lore of those early days that would have been interesting to all of us.

FOR EXAMPLE, Al Marseline, who lives close by to the Neff home with his grandmother, showed us an 1899 copy of the "Campbell Weekly Visitor", the forerunner to The Campbell Press, that he had found among the charred embers.

He also had picked up a large-sized notebook in which Mrs. Neff had jotted down verses, essays and songs mostly her own composition.

Her handwriting was excellent and the contents of the book were still clearly legible, even after going through the fire.

We suggested to Al that perhaps one of these days we might possibly publish a few of the excerpts from the notebook.

We noted that entries in the book went back as far as 1895 and the last entry was in 1908.

Another notebook found in the ashes but not in as good condition, apparently was kept by Mrs. Neff when she was attending school.

SOME OF YOU probably think we emphasize too much these bits of Campbell lore that crop up from time to time.

Perhaps we do.

Yet we feel very strongly that links with the past are important. It is not that we believe altogether in the old saw "that history repeats itself", but that we sincerely feel that our heritage is something that we should hold onto.

Even in Campbell.

That was our basic philosophy in stressing the bell-ringing on the Fourth of July.

Incidentally, we were happy to learn that there were many around who shared our sentiments.

Maybe next year the CampBELL clanging will be of greater magnitude.

One of the most interesting calls came from Mrs. Gertrude Stanford, of 39 N. Central.

Another gas station 'crisis' erupts

Council must act next Monday on Planning Commission denial

Having been turned down by the Planning Commission because a service station was included in the overall plans for the development of property on W. Hamilton Ave., J. L. Thompson, the developer next Monday night is asking that the City Council overrule the Planning Commission action.

The Planning Commission by a 3-2 vote denied the request for approval of "Planned Development" plans for the "Lands of Pruvich" located on the northwest corner of Hamilton Ave. and the proposed Marathon Dr.

The plans call for a shopping center complex development on the six-acre parcel. Included in the plans was a proposed service station at one intersection.

The majority of the members of the Planning Commission at the meeting, (Frank Klein, Thayer Lyons and Jim Tomlinson) who have long attempted to place a curb on the number of service stations in town, pointed out that this would be the fifth gas station either approved or under construction west of the San Tomas Expressway.

We are just overloaded with stations", was the way Klein put it.

Although unenthusiastic about more service stations, Commissioners Jack Healey and Kel Young emphasized that unfortunately a service station was a "necessary evil" in the overall financing of the entire project. They also indicated that there had been an indirect committment that this station would be allowed when the others had been approved.

Ironically, even under the proposed ordinance that would have put some control in the service station locations in town, this newest station up to bat would have qualified. The proposed ordi-

Pump tax increase hikes water rates

Both water companies serving the Campbell area, Campbell Water Co. and San Jose Water Works, have been granted authority to increase their rates by the Public Utilities Commission effective July 1.

The increases were authorized by the PUC to offset higher pump taxes imposed by Santa Clara Valley Water Conservation District.

According to the Campbell Water Co., a typical residential customer using 2000 cubic feet of water per month, the proposed increase would be approximately six cents per month. The pump tax will increase by $1.20 per acre-foot pumped by the company beginning July 1.

Commission staff calculations for a typical residential customer using 1700 cubic feet per month the increase would be about 51 cents per year.

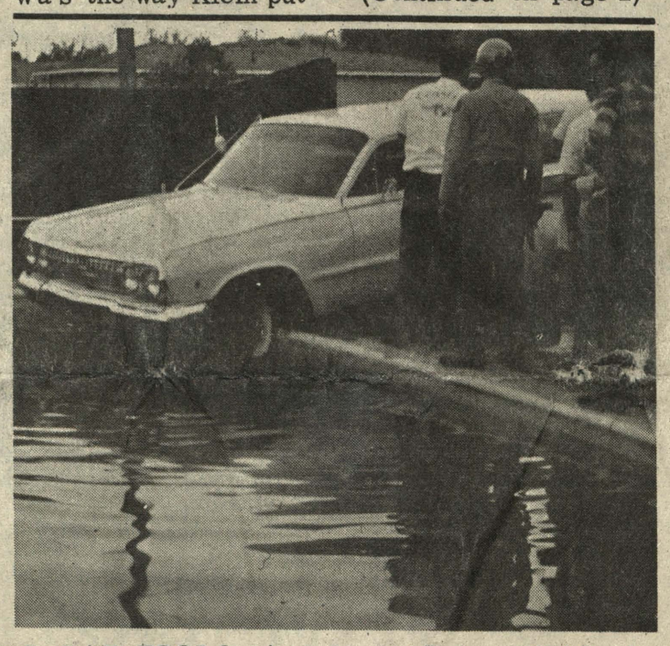
The new charges, according to the PUC, will apply only to quantity of water used and not to the basic service charge.

For the first 30,000 cubic feet the charge per 100 cubic feet will be raised from 25.3 cents to 25.55 cents. For service more than 30,000 cubic feet the charge per 100 cubic feet will be raised from 22.3 to 22.55 cents.

Rates for irrigation service and fire protection service are not affected.

The San Jose Water Works serves 120,000 customers in a 112 square mile area in Santa Clara County.

The Campbell Water Co., which in 1938 was serving only 700 customers now serves more than 4000, most of whom reside within the city limits of Campbell. Part of the city, however, is served by San Jose Water Works and the Campbell Water Co. also has customers outside the city limits.



A CAR POOL?--According to police reports, the above pictured car, driven by Richard Nixon, of 469 Century Dr., was knocked through three fences and into a pool at the K. A. Southard residence at 764 Bucknall Rd., Campbell, near Rickey Ct., when hit broadside by a car driven by Alan Wenzel, of 24878 Camrose Ave. San Jose.

GETS TRIAL HERE--The above-pictured sign is located on Stevens Creek Blvd. where the two-way left turn lane system has been in effect for some time.

The purpose is to alleviate the backing-up of traffic in through lanes caused by those making left turns. The same system is to be given a trial in Campbell on Winchester Blvd. between Latimer and Hamilton.

Winchester Blvd. to get two-way left turn lane

Left turning traffic into the shopping centers on Winchester Blvd. between Latimer and Hamilton will soon have a new traffic pattern to follow, according to Bill Wren, public works director.

Wren said that his department will install this week, for the first time in Campbell, the relatively new left-turn system which has proved successful in other localities. It has been in operation on Stevens Creek Blvd. for some time.

The system calls for a two-way left turn lane which will be used by traffic going both north and south on Winchester Blvd.

The objective of the plan, Wren points out, is to eliminate the backing up of through traffic at the peak periods caused by those making left turns from Winchester into the Campbell Shopping Center on the west side and to the stores on the west.

To gain the necessary width for the two-way lane, parking along the curbs on Winchester Blvd. will be eliminated. The new lane will be in the center with two through lanes on either side.

It will be well-marked by signs and the boundaries of the lane itself will be designated on the pavement by broken double yellow lines.

Wren explains that although some motorists may have visions of becoming panicky when cars appear to be coming toward them in the same lane, it really doesn't work that way.

In actual practice, he points out, cars in the lane will be moving slowly and will not move into the hallowed

Campbell High School band seeks bid to Rose Parade

Campbell High School Marching Band, which has won honors throughout Northern California, is seeking an invitation to participate in the Tournament of Roses Parade in Pasadena on New Year's Day.

It takes more than "just wishing", however, according to William Perkins, band instructor. There must be a flood of letters from local residents to the chairman of the music committee of the parade, asking that the band be invited.

Supporters of the band are urged to write to Oliver C. Prickett, Music Committee Chairman, Tournament of Roses, 391 S. Orange Grove Blvd., Pasadena, California.

The Campbell band is nearly 100 persons strong. It includes the Pirettes, the Flag Girls, and the Bell Girls. Howard Duckett and John Brydon are the drum majors. The school purchased sharp new red and blue uniforms for the band in 1965.

Last year the band took first place in every parade they participated in as well as first place in the Northern California Marching Contest in the high school division. The band has appeared on nation-wide television performing for the 49'ers football game and in the East-West game at Kezar Stadium in San Francisco.

Bill Perkins, the band instructor, has been at Campbell High School for 11 years. He holds his master's degree in music. Pat Brimmer, another Campbell teacher, also works with the band.

According to Perkins, it would take approximately $4,000 to send the band to Pasadena, to provide transportation, food and lodging. However, he indicated he would worry about raising the money later, after the invitation is received.

All fans of the Campbell high school band are urged to get those letters in the mail. . . NOW!

Editorial

Something to think over

The following editorial which appeared recently in the Los Gatos Times-Observer raises some interesting points about a decision of the Board of Supervisors.

Because the questions presented should give us all some food for thought, The Press republishes the editorial in its entirity.

PRESSURES SWAY BOARD?

It was disheartening this week to see the majority of our county supervisors make the decision to allow a Food Machinery Corp. ordnance test site on 2100 acres of prime agricultural land in the area south of San Jose, slated for recreational and residential development.

The planning commission twice opposed the grant, and the majority of landowners, citizen's groups and others interested in the logical development of the county opposed it. But it seemingly took only one lawyer and the weight of his client to sway four supervisors.

Sig Sanchez, supervisor for this district which includes the Sheldon ranch, held out to deny the bom testing use of the ranch but to no avail.

Supervisor Marty Spangler, whose area embraces Palo Alto and Mountain View--as far away as you can get from the Sheldon ranch and still stay in the county--said that the dynamite blasting at Permanente Cement plant was worse than that which will occur in the test area. Sanchez pointed out that "the mistake of allowing Permanente to dynamite one area doesn't mean we should make another mistake."

In a similar situation, the majority of the board seems to be determined, under the leadership of Sam Della Maggiore, to pick up the lease of the soon-to-be-abandoned Mercury-News building in downtown San Jose for a welfare building.

The welfare department and almost everyone else has looked at the building and found it unsatisfactory, extremely expensive to remodel, badly located, rent too high, no parking, a mish-mash of old buildings, and smelling a little bit of some sort of deal.

But against the welfare of the county itself, the majority of the board may vote to pick up the tab of remodelling cost of $572,000 (you'd think you could build a pretty good new building for that, and own it), and pay the rent of $114,000 per year.

The only group who wants the board to take over the building are interests in downtown San Jose. In other words, the taxpayers of all of the county must pay for the blunders and foolishness of the San Jose city and businessmen who allowed their downtown to deteriorate to a desert of empty buildings and gimcrack joints.

The county has no obligation to pull San Jose downtown out of a hole, to the detriment of the clients of welfare, the taxpayers of the county and the people who work in this field.

This sort of thing points up the danger that we've spoken of before--the dominance of San Jose, which has three supervisors in its environs--Mehrkens, Della Maggiore and Charles Quinn.

We trust that Mehrkens and Quinn will show their independence and vote for the good of the county as a whole, and reject Big Sam's plan.

years, thanked us for pushing the bell-ringing project and added that she was glad that the Flag and what it stands for was not being forgotten on Independence Day.

She said that she had lived in Campbell since 1912 and recalled that when she and her sister, Mrs. Mary Burch, had a hotel in Campbell the streets on the Fourth were always gaily decorated with flags.

She also mentioned, in relation to the bell-ringing, that for years she and her sister kept an old school bell that their school-teacher father used to call the pupils to class back in Rhode Island.

We plan to visit with Mrs. Stanford soon and chat with her extensively about the early days in Campbell.

THIS HAS NOTHING to do with anything particular but from time to time we have mentioned in this column about the amount of mail our office receives daily.

Much of it, as we have told you, is from public relation people, seeking to get free "plugs."

Some of it is of a specialized nature and is addressed to the proper person of our "large" organization, such as office manager, personnel manager, club editor, city editor, religious editor, education or mechanical superintendent.

All of us have fun deciding which specialist gets to open the mail in those instances. We all, of course, wear several hats.

Cliff Harrington, Brent's assistant in the back shop, had his chance recently. His special letter was addressed to "chief engineer" of The Campbell Press.

How about that for specialization.

nance, after months of discussion and wrangling at both the commission and council levels, was finally defeated on a divided vote of the council and was not adopted.

Three other zoning matters before the council next Monday night are not expected to result in any problems. All three were given routine and unanimous approval by the Planning Commission.

These include the applications of Jack Craig to modify the conditions under CM for property at 1334 Dell Ave.; John C. Vierhus from R-1 to P-O and R-3-S on property on E. Campbell Ave. just east of Union; and Vaughn Prettyman from C-1-S to C-2-S for property on W. Campbell Ave. at San Tomas Rd.

At the Planning Commission meeting, Dick Morton, former Campbell mayor, told the commission that the zone change was necessary on W. Campbell in order that a "Jack-in-the-Box" restaurant be constructed on the property.

The City Council next Monday is also expected to discuss what action, if any, should be taken in acquiring the property at 237 N. Central Ave. now in the hands of the county probate department. The two-story house on the lot recently burned to the ground just two weeks after the long-time owner, Mrs. Minnie Neff, had been found dead in it. No heirs have presented themselves.

The property will be needed by the city, if and when Latimer Ave. is cut through to Central.

territory until ready to make the left turn.

Wren said that the system also has the added traffic safety feature for those making left turns from the shopping centers onto Winchester as they only have to wait for through traffic going one way to clear. Now it is necessary to wait for traffic to clear in all lanes before making the break.

City officials also add that should the system prove unsatisfactory it can be eliminated by just repainting and removing the signs.

Campbell's community goal of United Fund totals $38,136

Campbell's community goal for the 1966 United Fund campaign has been set at $38,136, according to Harry C. Lind, Campbell UF campaign chairman and manager First Valley Bank.

The new 1966 goal was revealed at a campaign cabinet meeting of the Central Area Chapter, which includes Campbell and ten nearby cities, June 28.

Last year under the leadership of Ledger A. Myers, assistant to the manager of IBM in Campbell, residents of Campbell responded to the needs of a mushrooming community and county by raising more than 100 per cent of the goal.

We're hoping for this same enthusiastic response again this year," says Lind. "The United Fund is giving support to 72 health, welfare and citizenship-training facilities in the county and needs Campbell's help to make this s really successful campaign," concludes Lind.

Lind explains that the "fair share" guide for giving will again be encouraged during the coming campaign in order to meet the increased goal. Based on local and national surveys, UF recommends that the donor under $10,000 a year consider giving at least one hour's pay per month.

According to Robert B. Morris, Jr., campaign chairman of the Central Area Chapter the 1966 chapter goa has been set at $1,431 354.

Other communities contributing to the Central Area Chapter goal are: Cambrian Park--$5,019, Cupertino-Monta Vista--$30,968, Los Gatos-Monte Sereno--$25,301, Milpitas-Alviso--$49,654, Santa Clara--$149,895 and Saratoga --$25,113.

RR crossing gates can not trap you, says S P official

Have you ever wondered what you would do if your car was on a railroad crossing when the crossing gates dropped down, trapping you inside?

If you have, relax. It just can't happen that way, a Southern Pacific official has pointed out.

Crossing gates, said Robert L. King, SP division superintendent, only block the approach to the tracks when they are lowered. They always provide an open escape exit on the other side.

"Suppose you're on a regular two-lane street, with traffic moving in both directions," King explains. "As you approach the crossing, the gate lowers in front of you. But on the other side of the track, there's no gate in your lane. The only gate over there is in the left-hand lane, blocking traffic approaching the track from the opposite direction."

On a one-way street, he added, the gate would block the whole street, but only on the side from which traffic approaches the tracks. The other side would be clear.

King explained the gate operation because crossing gates are being used more and more for protection.

"Besides," he added, "accident accounts a dozen times a year mention a car 'trapped by the descending gates,' and it's bound to arouse some apprehension. It's important that people know that it doesn't happen."

San Jose State summer classes enroll 7270

Some 7,270 students registered for the six and ten-week summer sessions at San Jose State College Monday, June 27. Classes began Tuesday and continue through August 5 for the six-week session and September 2 for the ten-week program.

As part of the SJSC summer sessions program, registration also took place Monday at the branch campus at Hartnell College in Salinas and the California State College's new facility at Moss Landing Marine Laboratories.

Also starting this week were eight specialized workshops including Current School Legislation, Data Processing, Student Teacher Supervision, Economics for Secondary Teachers, Advanced Study Program in Driver Education for College Instructors, Society Sex and School, Elementary Education and Language Development for the Underprivileged.

The seven NDEA and NSF Institutes include World History, Educational Media Specialists, School Librarianship, Mathematics for Junior High, High School and Junior College Teachers and a special program in reading taught by Dr. Robert Bainbridge in Switzerland.

All seven are funded by money from the National Defense Educational Act or the National Science Foundation and represent the largest number of institutes given by a single California State College campus this summer.

Dr. Leo P. Kibby is Dean of Educational Services and Summer Sessions.

CISSY PATTERSON, The life of Eleanor Medill Paterson, Publisher and Editor of the Washington Times-Herald by Alice Albright Hoge.

"Cissy" was more than a nickname for Eleanor Patterson; it was a trademark. Her personality was as varied as her names. As a human being and as a journalist, she was unique. She had so many assets that only her liabilities matched them.

Flavored by genius and madness, she was as barbaric as she was exquisite. As an editor and publisher of the largest-circulation newspaper in the nation's capital she had power and she was not shy about using it.

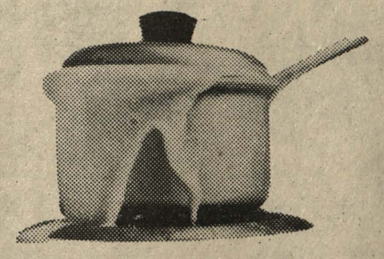
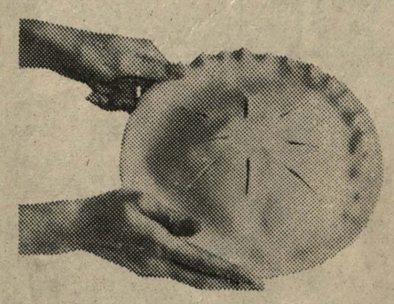
HELPFUL HINTS FROM PG&E HOME ECONOMISTS:

How to keep your kitchen clean without slaving at it.



To prevent foods from boiling over or burning:

Use a roomy utensil. Set your timer to remind you when to turn the heat down. For open-pan meat roasting, use a low-sided bright pan and a low temperature (325°-350°).



When baking juicy pies:

Cut the top crust half an inch larger than the pie plate, tuck under the lower crust and crimp the edge high to hold in the juice. Cut a piece of foil about two inches larger than the pie plate and place it on the lower oven rack to catch any boilover.

Clean your oven as you use it

If acid foods (milk, tomatoes, fruit) are spilled on porcelain enamel, wipe them up immediately with a dry cloth or paper towel to prevent possible discoloration.

When your range is cool, wash the porcelain with a soapy cloth, rinse and dry. A mild abrasive may be used to remove burned spots on chromium. Don't use scouring pads or other harsh abrasives on porcelain enamel—they make tiny scratches.

Don't blame gas or electricity for dirt

The dirt that accumulates on kitchen walls, ceilings and curtains comes from grease-laden steam—not from gas or electricity. So cover pots and pans while cooking and you'll keep your kitchen cleaner.

PG&E Home Economists conduct cooking schools in many communities each year. You can pick up new recipes plus tricks and shortcuts to make your kitchen hours more enjoyable—and it's free. Watch your newspaper for announcements.

Notes written by Mrs. Knowles while abroad

Ed. Note:
Following are excerpts from a travelogue written by Mrs. Arva Knowles who is enjoying a trip around the world on the S. S. Canberra. Mrs. Knowles left April 22 and will return July 15.

April 22, 1966

All the way to Acapulco, Mexico, the weather was perfect. There it was pretty hot and humid, but our ship is airconditioned, so it is most comfortable inside.

April 24, 1966

Many children are on board, but they are fed separately elsewhere and have a complete playroom and nursery, so we see little of them. Also a number of teen-age or college kids. Can't figure why. We had a drill with use of life jackets.

There are many "tours" on board and today there was a meeting of our tour with guides. There are 306 of us.

This night was the Commodore's cocktail party, when everyone puts on his best bib and tucker and shakes hands with the big brass. This was done in the big ball room.

April 25, 1966

The steward brings tea into our room every morning. He knocks, unlocks door and walks in right now! So far we've been in bed each a.m. when he arrives. It's always tea. Sometimes there's juice too, and once wafers. I am interested only the days for juice. Clock ahead another 30 minutes.

April 26, 1966

Arrived Acapulco 9 a.m. Walked on deck and read. After lunch took a ride in one of the life boats from ship anchored in harbor to shore for a 2 1/2 hr. tour of Acapulco. It's a beautiful bay with a very narrow neck. Is completely surrounded by low mountains. Our tour was in taxis. We went through the poverty stricken area around the docks. What filth! Food and drinks were being sold along the sidewalks under unbelievable, non-sanitary conditions.

But out beyond all over the hills were probably over 100 hotels - some fabulous - and some fine homes. (Maybe all American, or largely so.) Saw a diver dive down into a rocky cove from a cliff ever so high. It was a beautiful dive. 26 men are trained to do this and take turns.

Many drivers in state fail to renew licenses in time

Last year, 2.3 million Californians renewed their drivers' licenses at offices of the Department of Motor Vehicles. More than 240,000 of these drivers had to take take driving tests because they failed to renew their licenses on time.

This rate of tardiness adds to the cost of issuing licenses, inconveniences drivers, and creates a traffic enforcement problem.

"A driver has nine months in which to renew his license without penalty," explained DMV Director Tom Bright. "He has six months before, and 90 days after expiration of his license. If he applies for renewal more than 90 days after expiration of his old license, we are required to administer a road test (to make sure he can still drive safely), and to reduce his license term to the minimum three-year period," Bright said.

Every license is issued to expire on the holder's birthday, as a reminder to check the license every year. However, Bright reports that one of every 10 drivers forgets and renews late.

EXPIRED

How many Californians drive with expired licenses? Bright could not cite an exact figure, but indicated the number is substantial because most drivers are unaware that their licenses have expired until it is too late.

"Typically, an applicant comes into our office and reports with some embarrassment that his license has expired. We try to explain that he was in danger of being cited for driving without a valid license, and that he could have renewed before the license expired.

"Many motorists first discover that their licenses have expired when stopped by a police officer," Bright added. "They're even more embarrassed in this situation."

Until 1963, the law permitted only a 30-day period for renewal after a license expired. At that time, Bright reports, late renewals were running above 20 per cent of all renewal applications.

LEEWAY

The law was changed in 1963 to permit a leeway of 90 days after expiration of licenses. After one year the rate dropped to 14 per cent. In 1964 it was down to 12 per cent of all renewals.

"It seems to have leveled off now at about 10 per cent," Bright said.

Because it costs more money to examine a driver on a behind-the-wheel road test, Bright stated that DMV would make substantial savings each year if all drivers would renew their licenses on time.

He said the real problem is the volume of drivers. California has 10 million licenses drivers. This makes it extremely costly to notify drivers of impending license expiration. (Postage alone would cost more than $150,000 a year, Bright said, and would hardly be justified to remind only one driver in 10).

The solution is for drivers to check the expiration year of their licenses frequently. The year of expiration is stamped in the upper left corner of licenses.

Bright's suggestion: check your license on your birthday.

If you forget, you'll find yourself on a driving test - along with 1,000 other drivers who every day are late for their license renewal.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Questions and Answers

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH, EDUCATION, AND WELFARE
SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION

Q. - I receive social security benefits for myself and my child. If I sell my home and get a down payment plus monthly payments, will this affect our social security checks?

A. - No. Only income earned in employment or self-employment is counted in determining whether you meet the "retirement test".

Q. - Does the medical insurance program pay for the cost of drugs prescribed by my doctor?

A. - No. Under the program, drugs are covered only when they are administered by your doctor as part of his services in your home, his office, or elsewhere. If your doctor prescribes drugs, which you purchase, their cost is not covered.

Q. - If I have a bill of $500 in a year for doctors' visits and covered treatments, how much will I have to pay under the supplementary medical plan?

A. - It would cost you $140. The program would pay $360. This is how it is figured: you pay the first $50 in each calendar year for doctors' and other covered services. Your medical insurance then pays 80 per cent of the charges for additional covered services.

Q. - Can I choose my own doctor under the supplementary medical insurance program, or am I restricted to doctors selected by the Government?

A. - There are no restrictions in your choice of doctors under the program. You may use your present doctor or any other qualified physician.

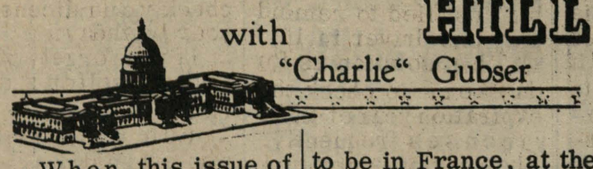
ON CAPITOL HILL

with "Charlie" Gubser



When this issue of "ON CAPITOL HILL" is published, I expect to be in France, at the request of the Chairman of the Armed Services Committee, to gather information upon which Congress can make decisions regarding the removal of our military forces from that country.

Since President De Gaulle has ordered U. S. forces to vacate by July 1 of next year, important decisions must be made regarding disposal of our military facilities in France, acquisition of replacement facilities in other countries and what can be done to recover the cost of the facilities we will abandon.

Since World War II the United States has invested a total of more than $550 million in 189 different military installations in France. Additionally another $747 million has been invested in NATO facilities, of which the French contributed $112 million. The U. S. share was $296,600,000.

In all, the United States has invested more than $846 million in military facilities located in France since World War II.

As we approach the decisions which must be made, it is tempting to let emotion run away with our heads. Some have seriously suggested leveling whatever facilities we leave behind to make them unavailable for French use unless we are reimbursed. On purely emotional grounds there is some justification for such an attitude.

For nearly fifty years the United States has done more for France than any nation has ever done for another. Twice within the last fifty years Americans have fought in France at a great cost in lives and money.

60,000 Americans are still buried on French soil. After victory was won, we assisted in the military protection of France's freedom and underwrote the rebuilding of its economy. France received U. S. gifts and credits totaling $11 billion and $4 billion in direct Marshall Plan aid.

Now President De Gaulle shows his gratitude for all this assistance by demanding gold for all French credits in the United States while owing us more than $6.7 billion. Our Administration succumbed to De Gaulle's demands, added to our balance of payment problems, and endangered the stability of the dollar.

In light of such ingratitude, it would be easy to order the leveling of every installation we have built in France. But such a policy ignores the fact that De Gaulle is but a temporary phase of French policy.

The time will come when the French people will once again feel the need for standing shoulder to shoulder with the United States in the defense of freedom and liberty. Under these circumstances, the bases we must leave before next July might be necessary to the defense of the free world.

So it is essential that we approach our studies in Franch with clear heads and no preconceived notions based upon emotion.

Letters to the Editor

IN APPRECIATION

Dear Editor:

I would appreciate if you would publish the following letter that I sent to the City Council and Campbell Fire Department. Thank you

To Campbell City Council and Campbell Fire Department:

Many residents in Campbell have heard that our Fire Department has won the National Grand Award. I only wish everyone could have seen how quick and efficient the group worked to save my garage and service station in a fire Monday morning, June 27, at Winchester and Rincon Ave.

I wish to express my sincere thanks to every man who served. Without their help my loss would have been even greater. They deserve the National Award.

Sincerely,
Eva M. Archibald

CHP describes best measure of driving ability

What would you say is the best measure of driving ability?

Is it the way a driver shifts gears? Is it the way he backs up with a trailer hooked on his car? How about knowledge of driving laws?

What is the best test?

The best test, according to Captain R. P. Bliss, commander of the California Highway Patrol in San Jose, is to see how a driver reacts when he is placed in a situation where, because of the carelessness of another driver, an accident seems inevitable.

"The good driver will pull through without an accident while the poor driver will become involved," he declared.

"Of course, the good driver tries to avoid situations which cause accidents by being on his guard at all times and driving legally; but it is no consolation to know that it was the other guy's fault.

"There are times when the recklessness, ignorance or stupidity of another driver makes it almost impossible to avoid an accident, but most accidents can be prevented with some skill and a lot of forethought."
